

Working with Children Checks

Applying to SACAT to review a decision of the Central Assessment Unit

What is SACAT?

The South Australian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (SACAT) is a Tribunal that has the power to review certain decisions made by the Central Assessment Unit (CAU) of the Department of Human Services.

What decisions of the CAU cannot be reviewed by SACAT?

Prescribed Offences

SACAT does not have the power to review a decision made to prohibit you from working with children if you:

- have been prohibited from working with children under a law of the Commonwealth or another State or Territory or
- have been found guilty of a 'prescribed offence' under the Child Safety (Prohibited Persons) Act 2016 (SA)

Prescribed offences include a range of offences where the victim was a child, such as:

- murder
- manslaughter
- kidnapping and unlawful child removal
- rape and other sexual offences
- incest
- various child pornography offences and
- child exploitation offences

For more information regarding prescribed offences please refer to the Working with Children Check Guidelines, the Child Safety \(Prohibited Persons\) Act and Regulations.

What decisions of the CAU can SACAT review?

If you are unhappy with the CAU's decision to issue you with a 'prohibition notice' which prohibits you from working with children, you may apply to SACAT to have this decision reviewed.

Presumptive Disqualification Offences

The CAU may have issued you with a prohibition notice stating that you are prohibited from working with children because you have not 'rebutted the presumption' that you pose an unacceptable risk to children due to being found guilty of a presumptive disqualification offence.

This means:

- a) it has been assumed that you pose an unacceptable risk to children because you have either been charged with, or found guilty of, a certain criminal offence and
- b) you have not provided the CAU with information to satisfy them that, despite the conviction, you do not pose an unacceptable risk to children

Other conduct amounting to an unacceptable risk

The CAU may have issued you with a prohibition notice stating that you are prohibited from working with children even if you have not been convicted of a presumptive disqualification offence. This decision may be based on information about:

- a) your conduct or behaviour (collected from other sources) and/or
- b) charges or a finding of guilt about a criminal offence that is not a prescribed offence or a presumptive disqualification offence

For more information regarding presumptive disqualification offences and conduct that may amount to the issuing of a prohibition notice please refer to the Working with Children Check Guidelines, the Act and Regulations.

What does SACAT have to decide?

When SACAT is reviewing the CAU's decision to issue you with a prohibition notice, the Tribunal must decide whether the correct and preferable decision is to find that you pose an unacceptable risk to children.

A list of the factors that the Tribunal must consider in deciding whether you pose an unacceptable risk to children is located below under 'Risk Assessment Criteria'.

What is the paramount consideration of the Tribunal?

In dealing with applications involving working with children checks, the paramount consideration of the Tribunal will be the best interests of children, having regard to their safety and protection.

Risk Assessment Criteria

The Tribunal (like the CAU) must have regard to the following factors when making a decision:

- the nature, gravity and circumstances of the information including criminal offences, child protection information or disciplinary or misconduct information and how this is relevant to children or child related work
- the length of time that has passed since the event occurred
- the vulnerability of the victim at the time of the event including the age of the victim, the age of the person at the time of the event, the age difference between the person and the victim, and the person's relationship to the victim or position of authority over the victim at the time of the event
- the person's criminal, child protection, disciplinary or misconduct and/or other relevant history, including whether there is a pattern of concerning conduct
- the person's conduct since the event and
- all other relevant circumstances in respect of the information including offending, child protection, disciplinary or misconduct

and/or other information or other relevant history, and the impact on the person's eligibility to be engaged in child-related work

What information should you provide to the Tribunal?

The Tribunal will make a decision based on all of the relevant information that has been provided by the CAU. The Tribunal can also consider further evidence on the review provided by you or the CAU.

Setting aside the presumption

In a review of a decision based on a presumptive disqualification offence the burden, or obligation, is on you to demonstrate, through the information that you provided to the CAU and any fresh evidence that you provide to the Tribunal, that you do not pose an unacceptable risk to children, despite having been charged with or found guilty of such an offence.

The Tribunal will need to be satisfied that there are any exceptional or other circumstances about the offence and/or your later conduct sufficient to enable it to disregard the presumptive disqualification offence, taking into account the objects of the Act.

You should provide independent evidence to the Tribunal which supports your submissions. This should include a statement from you and anyone else who has relevant information about all or some of the following:

- the circumstances of the allegations, charges or offences that may explain it
- the steps you have taken since that time to address the behaviour which led to the conviction and your becoming prohibited from working with children
- your conduct since the offending conduct
- any information that demonstrates you have voluntarily completed a supervised intervention program (i.e. treatment, rehabilitation, behaviour management)

- a report from a psychologist or psychiatrist addressing the question of any risks that you may pose to the safety of children
- a report or reference from any current or previous employer and
- any relevant character references

It is important to remember that you are aiming to persuasively demonstrate that you do not now pose an unacceptable risk to children.

If you intend to get a report from a psychiatrist or psychologist you should make an appointment as soon as possible after you lodge your review application and find out their future availability to give evidence so that you can tell the Tribunal.

A review where there is no presumption

In a review of a prohibition notice based on other conduct (not amounting to a presumptive disqualification offence) you do not need to rebut a presumption that you are a risk to children. The Tribunal will reconsider the CAU's decision to determine what the correct or preferable decision should be.

But it would be helpful on the review to provide all relevant evidence (such as that detailed above) in support of your submission that the decision to prohibit you from working with children is not the correct or preferable decision.

How can SACAT decide a review?

When determining an application SACAT can:

- confirm that the decision is correct
- vary the decision in some way or
- find that the decision was incorrect and either
 - substitute its own decision or
 - send it back to the CAU for further consideration

The Tribunal will have before it the CAU's decision and a copy of all the documentation which was taken into consideration by the CAU when making the decision under review.

The Tribunal is entitled to proceed on the basis of any criminal convictions or findings of guilt and the facts found by the court to form the basis of the convictions or findings. This means that you cannot try to argue in the Tribunal that the court conviction or court findings were wrong.

How do I apply?

All applications to SACAT are completed through our online application form which you can find at our website: www.sacat.sa.gov.au.

All the information you are required to provide will be contained in the online application form.

If you are unable to complete the form online, you can contact the Tribunal for assistance on 1800 723 767. You can also visit SACAT's offices at Level 4 or 7, 100 Pirie Street, and use a computer at one of SACAT's public kiosks.

How long do I have to seek a review from SACAT?

You must lodge your application for review within 14 days of receiving the 'prohibition notice' preventing you from working with children.

SACAT may allow an extension of time if satisfied that special circumstances exist, and another party will not be unreasonably disadvantaged by the delay in commencing the proceedings.

What fees apply to an application to review a decision of the CAU?

There is a filing fee that applies to this type of application.

You must generally pay a fee when you make an application to SACAT. However, this depends on the type of application you are making and your role in the matter.

The online application form will tell you the applicable fee for your application. You must pay this fee at the time of making your application or you may make an application for the fee to be waived.

SACAT will not do anything with your application until any applicable fees have been paid or waived.

Further information about SACAT fees and charges is available at our website, Fees and charges and Fee waivers and exemptions.
